

YANKS AT ARCHANGEL LOVED BY RUSSIANS

Relieve Economic Stress
Caused by Bolshevik Epidemic.

NO FIGHTING IN CITY
Prison and School Houses
Now Serve as Barracks for Americans.

BY MARGARET WALTER
LONDON, March 1.—Quite like a boom town on the American frontier in '49 is Archangel, Russia, where many Yanks are wintering. Among other activities they run the street car lines of Archangel whenever the motormen and conductors feel the Bolshevik epidemic coming over them.

The log houses and the flabby swamp that is the site of Archangel, have been described to me by Captain W. H. Wynne, of the American Red Cross, who until recently was in sole charge of the Red Cross contingent at this far Northern Russian port. He carried up sufficient supplies when he went last July to keep the men comfortable for a year.

Because of the swamp every street has a wide wooden road down its center for wagons or pedestrians. From this corduroy road run board walks into every home and shop.

In normal times Archangel has a population of 90,000 but owing to presence of refugees and Allied troops there are about 120,000 there this winter.

One of the largest buildings in the town, the former prison, is now a barracks for American soldiers. They are also quartered in the large schools which before the war were among the best in Russia. The children of Archangel still go to school but they have been accommodated in one building in order to make room for the Yanks.

"Our soldiers have made a big hit with the Russians," said Captain Wynne. "The boys in Archangel are all from the West, the 339th Infantry from Michigan and the first battalion of the 310th Engineers from Wisconsin."

"All summer we spent building houses for this winter and improving roads which are the worst in the world so that it would be possible to transport goods and provisions over them. Then we undertook to improve the town itself and help the inhabitants to get a more comfortable view of things."

"How about fighting the Bolsheviks?" he was asked.

"Well, of course, there is a certain amount of that but by the time our troops got to Archangel the vast stores which they had been sent to guard were already gone so there hasn't been any fighting in the town. Our troops who have been in action are six or eight days' journey away. To keep these troops provisioned is the chief work of the Archangel contingent."

"We have provided recreation for the long winter evenings. There are plenty of pianos in Russia so we have as much music as we want. The Y. M. C. A. keeps things lively."

"Even in winter we have communication with the world every fortnight when by almost superhuman efforts sledges are dragged down the river to meet the boat from Norway which brings mail. The boys get letters from home now and then and they have time to write home and plenty to write about."

One boy tramped all night through the rain over dangerous roads to find a doctor to attend a woman who was in extreme need. A group of soldiers gave their rations to Bolshevik prisoners who were dying of starvation in the prison. And as for the children, as usual our boys make no attempt whatever to keep from spoiling every child no matter of what nationality. In a short time after American soldiers arrived the town was full of Red Cross chocolate, and other little trinkets from service comfort bags, which the children fancied.

Captain Wynne is now in London preparing to go to Germany where he is to take charge of some of the Russian prisoners. Food and clothes are already on their way to these camps where the Russians are starving.

NEW USE FOR NEWSPAPERS

Motorist Says They Are Better in Mud Than Mules.

A motorist who lives in a section where mud roads are common and whose car has often been stuck in the mud, sends a suggestion to the Kansas City Star.

"I always have stored away somewhere in my car a stack of old newspapers," he says. "They don't take up so much room but that I can always find a place for them. When I strike a mudhole and the wheels begin to fly tells me that I am firmly and definitely around in that exasperating way which stuck. I get out my bundle of papers."

"Taking a newspaper, I fold it horizontally across the page and proceed to the task of working the paper between the tire and the mud. This is a simple matter, and is accomplished by feeding in the paper while the wheels are being revolved. I feed the paper in lengthwise. Usually only a few will have been worked in when the tires will begin to grip and the car start forward. If a few won't do the work, keep on feeding in the papers until good traction is gained."

"GROSS INCOME" EXPLAINED

Revenue Collector Requires Itemized Report of Taxpayers.

Collectors of internal revenue are receiving frequent inquiries as to the amount to be included under "gross income" in their income tax returns.

In making out his return of gross income, the taxpayer is required to account for practically every dollar he received during 1918. The following items must be reported.

Salaries, wages and commission for personal services, including bonuses, interest received on notes and deposits in banks, including savings banks, and dividends on stock, whether received in cash or stock.

Only dividends paid out of earnings or profits accrued since March 1, 1913, are taxable, but dividends are deemed to be distributed out of the most recently accumulated earnings.

Profits resulting from purchases and sales of property, real or personal. If the property was purchased before March 1, 1913, the profit is based on the difference between the selling price and the fair market price or value as of March 1, 1913.

Profit from stock market transactions, income received from fiduciaries, that is amounts received from income of estates, trusts, etc., through trustees, administrators or executors, net partnership profits, whether divided or distributed or not, royalties from mines, oil and gas wells, patents, copyrights and franchises.

The following items are not taxable and need not be included in the return: Property received as a gift or by will or inheritance. It must be understood, however, that the income derived from such property is taxable. Proceeds of life insurance policies, returns of premiums on life endowment and annuity policies, interest on securities issued under the provisions of the Federal Farm Loan Act of July 17, 1916.

Amounts received through accident or health insurance, or under workmen's compensation acts, plus the amount of damages received, whether by suit or agreement on account of such injuries or sickness. Amounts received during the war by a person in the military or naval forces for active service, up to $3,500.

Interest on obligations of any state or political subdivision of a state, such as a city, county, town or village, and the District of Columbia. Interest on obligations of the United States is exempt, except that interest on obligations issued after September 1, 1917, is exempt only to the extent provided in the Liberty Loan Acts.

Interest on Liberty Bonds to the par value of $5,000 is exempt from all taxation. Holders of large amounts of Liberty Bonds are advised to consult their bankers or collectors of internal revenue as to their interest exemptions.

TO OFFER COURSE ON TRACTOR

University Plans to Encourage Use of Motors on Farms.

The College of Agriculture will offer a series of short courses on the tractor and gas engines beginning March 3. The first course will be completed March 15. A repetition of this course will begin March 17 and be completed April 1. The success of these first two courses will determine whether or not the work is to be continued.

Lectures and practical work on different types of engines and tractors will be given to persons who take this course from 8 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be no expense for books. An enrollment fee of $5 will be charged.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank my many friends for the kind sympathy and beautiful floral designs given during my recent bereavement in the death of my husband. To the fraternal organizations, the Masons, Knights of Pythias and ladies of the O. E. S., I extend my heartfelt thanks for your aid and tender sympathy.

MRS. BESSIE WASHINGTON.

The agricultural engineering department has bought a number of motors and magnetos which were formerly used by the vocational section of the S.A.T.C.

The University is giving this special course to teach farmers of the state how to run their tractors and to encourage more to buy tractors. Elmer H. Hughes is superintendent of the courses.

A HOT SPOT Chalmers wings the power from gas

As any one knows there is just so much power in a gallon of gas; and the great trick in a gas engine is to get all the power out and convert it into mileage.

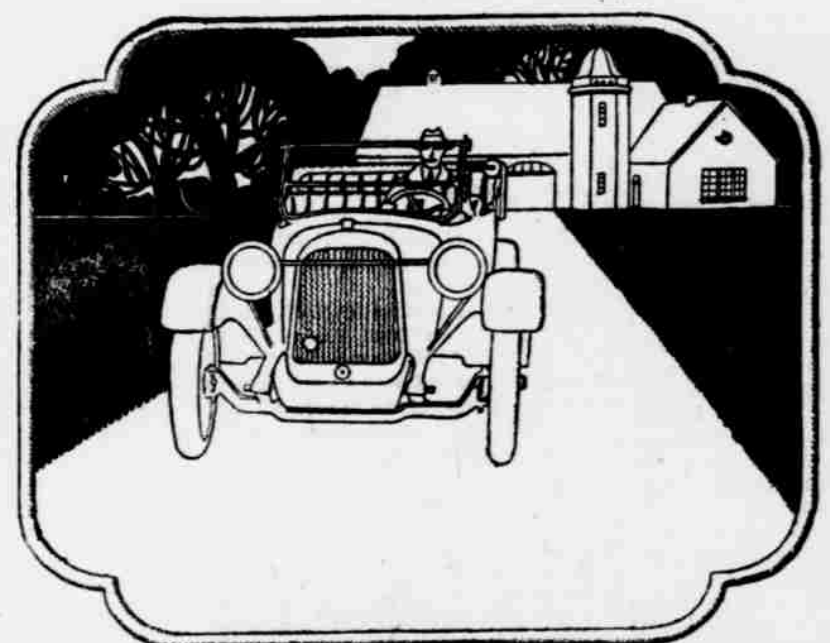

Yet do you know how little power actually is taken out of gas by the average car? And how much power goes out the exhaust?

Ask any motor car engineer.

A Chalmers engine simply wings power out of gas. Its famous Hot Spot "cracks up" the gas, just as constant chewing of food prepares it for good digestion before swallowing.

To get power out of gas the gas has got to be "cracked up." Then it has got to be placed into the cylinders in a "dry" condition. This the great Ram's-horn does to a work of engineering art.

You can tell how true this is the minute your foot touches the accelerator button of a present day Chalmers and you get the feel of that throbbing, frictionless power that means so much to your peace of mind, your tires, your bank balance and your self satisfaction.
